

Indiana Division of Forestry Group FSC Chain of Custody Certification SCS-COC-002041

Indiana State Forests are certified by the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC). Purchasers of that timber may market those products as FSC certified only if they have FSC Chain-of-Custody (CoC) certification. To expedite and simplify this CoC process, the Division of Forestry has developed a template procedures document and achieved a Group certificate through Scientific Certification Systems (SCS). Any Indiana company can use the template as guide in developing their own document. For small loggers and primary mill operators (defined as having 15 or fewer employees) the Division of Forestry will cover all the audit cost. The only cost to a small operator is an annual licensing fee of a few hundred dollars per year.

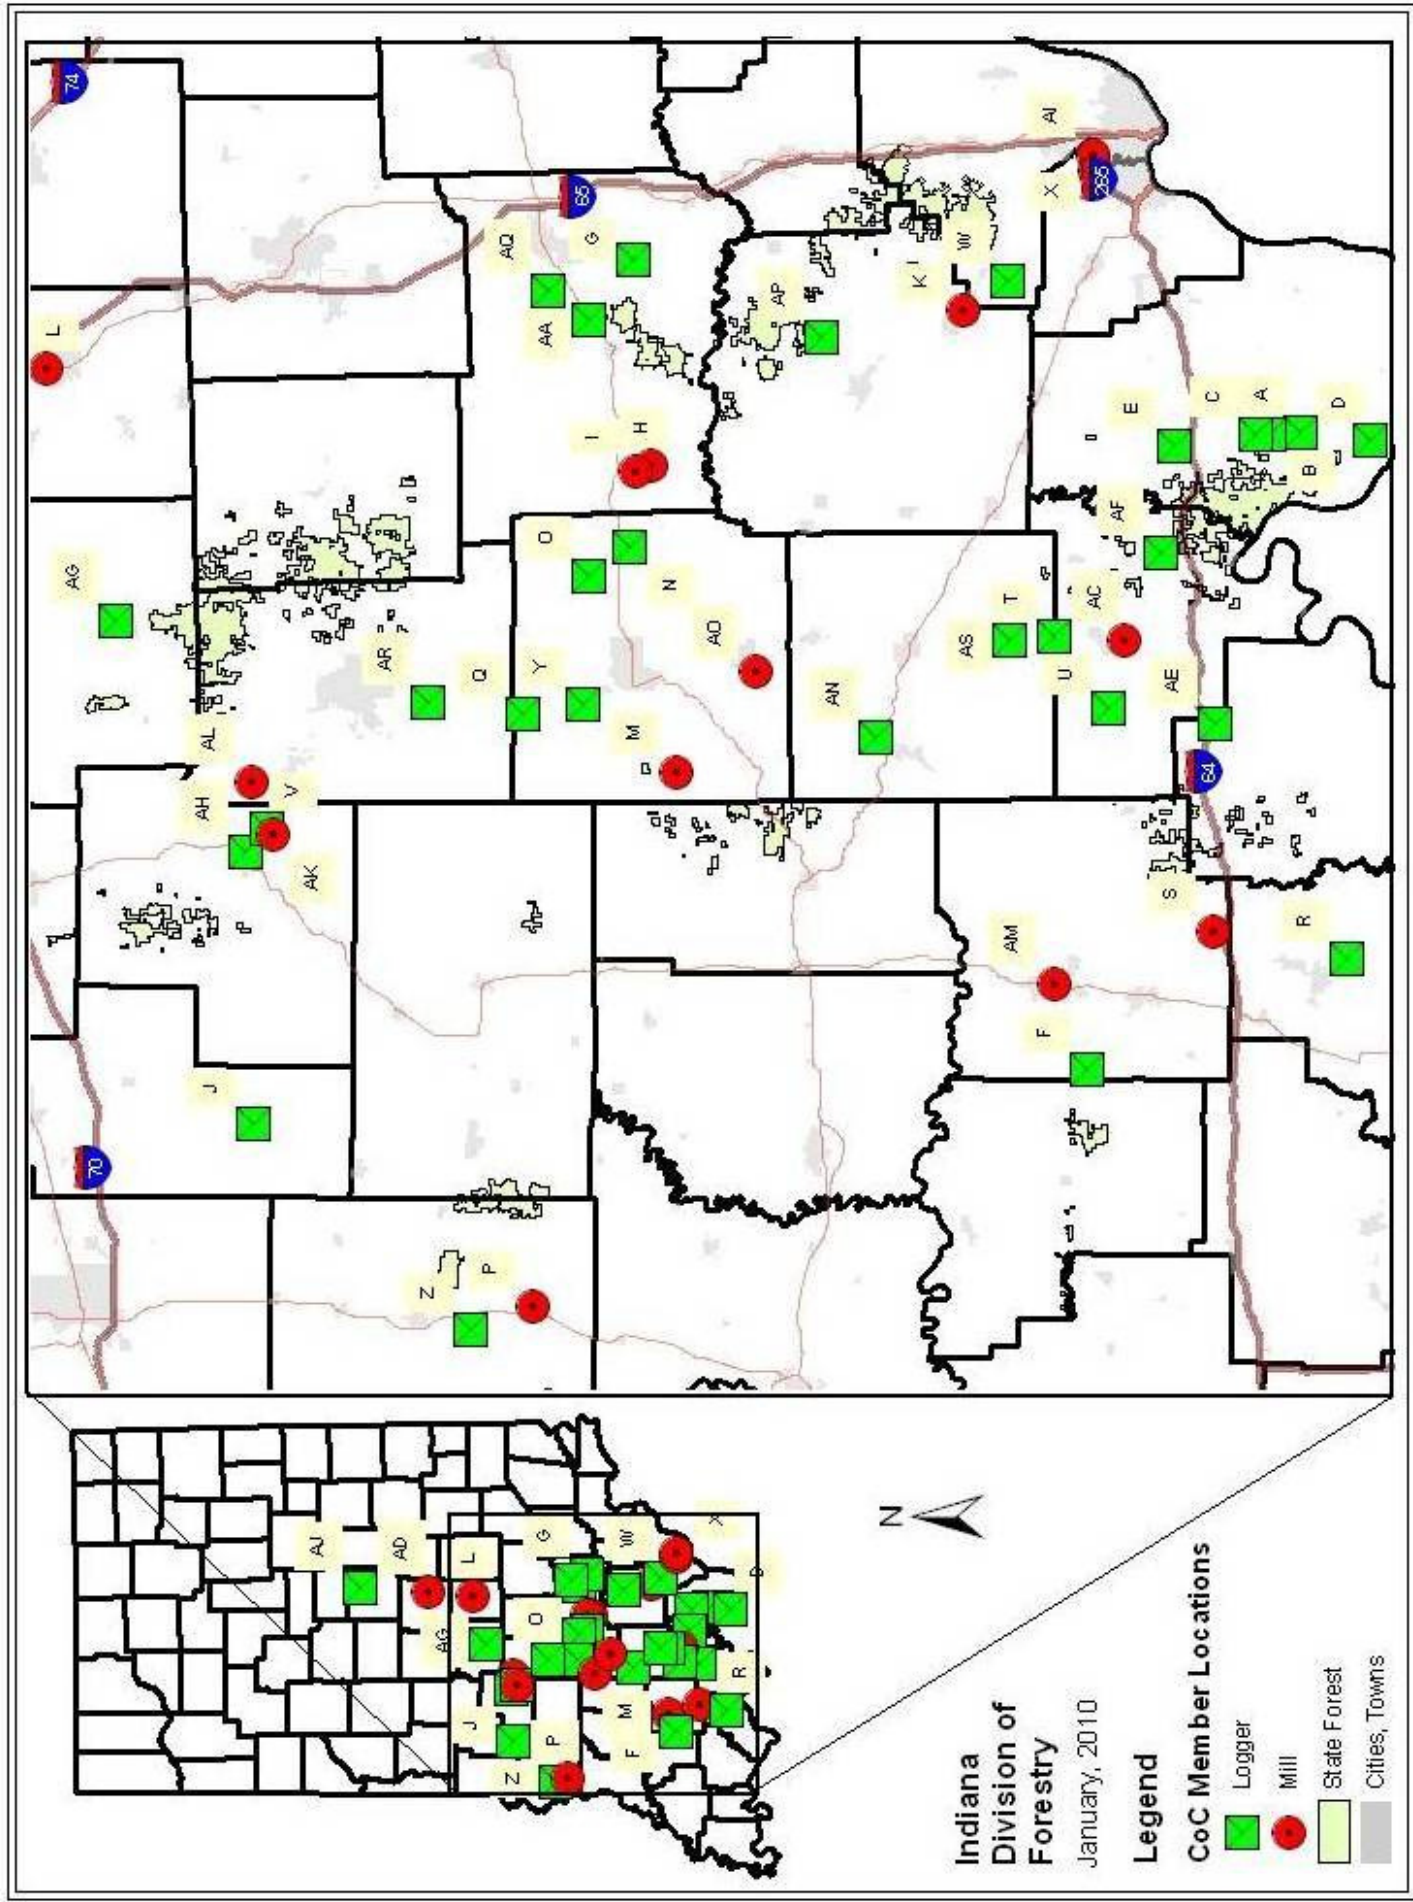

Current members of the Division of Forestry's Group CoC certificate are listed on the following page. Membership is limited to companies that meet the following qualifications:

- Located within the State of Indiana
- Engaged in logging, hauling or primary processing of forest products
- Make application to the Division of Forestry (DoF) requesting group membership
- Agree to comply with Corrective Action Requests (CARs) issued by DoF or contract auditors or the Certification Body, SCS.
- Agree to provide information (as necessary to ensure compliance with FSC CoC standards) to the DoF or the Certification Body upon request. This information may include, but not limited to: production records, internal policy documents, management records, invoices for services or products, and agreements with outside entities.
- Submit to an initial audit and to annual audits by DoF and/or the Certifying Body
- Agree to have FSC product claims for labeling, marketing, and promotion comply with the appropriate FSC standard and be approved by SCS through the DoF

Companies with more than 15 employees must cover audit costs themselves, but may still benefit from membership in the Division's group. Those companies need to apply to a certifying body, prepare a procedures manual and submit to an initial audit. This process usually takes 3-6 months and costs the typical company several thousand dollars.

Indiana's Classified Forest Land has been audited and should soon achieve certification, so timber from those lands may soon be FSC certified.

Indiana companies with an interest in becoming a member of the group should contact the Division of Forestry to request an Application for Group Membership. For additional information, contact Carl Hauser at 317-232-4114 or chauser@dnr.in.gov.
